FOREWORD

Minnesota has had a Vital Statistics Law since 1870. In early days it was difficult to embue the settlers of the state with proper respect for the importance of registering births and deaths and preserving such records as were filed, because there was little call for copies of the records and their importance became known only when the need for them became apparent.

Until recent years perhaps only one person in a thousand has realized that there was an existing law which required the registration of births and deaths with local registrars, the State Department of Health, and the County Clerks of Court. Usually they realized the importance of these records only when called upon to produce copies for legal purposes; i.e., evidence to establish:

Proof of citizenship and age
The right of admission to many professions and public offices
Proof of right to inherit property through descent
Citizenship for government employ
Legal age to vote
Legal age to marry
The right to or exemption from military service
Administration of estates and settlement of insurance & pensions

The Social Security Act became effective in 1937. Birth records were required to establish proof of age of persons 65 years old or older who wished to prove themselves eligible for pensions. The births of thousands of native Minnesotans had not been registered. Although the records had been used for many purposes up to 1937, this was the first real awakening on the part of the general public to the fact that birth records were of practical use.

In 1940 when the National Defense Program was initiated, what had been a steadily increasing demand for birth records became a clamor heard in every part of the country. Soldiers, sailors, aviators, marines, mechanics, workers in industries having government contracts and thousands of other people needed copies of their birth records. It then became generally known that beginning with the year 1900 the birth and death certificates for Minnesota were on file in the Division of Birth and Death Records of the State Department of Health.

But where were the records for years prior to 1900 -- the records needed to establish eligibility for old-age pensions, Social Security benefits, etc.?

The many questions relating to the sources where copies of these records may be obtained are answered by the Historical Records Survey of the Work Projects Administration, and its contribution which guides the searcher to existing public records, enabling him to make the maximum use of the material with the least loss of time, is a service well worth rendering. The State Board of Health, through its Division of Birth and Death Records and Vital Statistics, acknowledges its indebtedness to the Minnesota Historical Records Survey and to the officials of the Work Projects Administration for making this publication possible.

PREFACE

In a communication dated September 3, 1940, designated as Professional and Service Letter No. 75, the Washington office of the Work Projects Administration requested the Historical Records Survey projects in the various states to collect and report certain information regarding vital statistics records. The report was to include a brief check list of existing State and local public records of births, marriages, deaths, and divorces, with transcripts, abstracts, or citations of legislation requiring or affecting the keeping of records of each of these types.

Accordingly the Minnesota Historical Records Survey project assembled the information for the State, and transmitted a report during the last part of September and the early part of October. The information thus communicated to the Washington office had been collected by the project during the course of its survey of county and other local archives. Each of the series of records showed title, dates covered, number of volumes or containers, arrangement, indexing, cost of certified copies, and location.

The report was designed to assist men enlisting in the military and naval forces of the United States, as well as others, to locate records from which certified copies of entries of interest to them could be obtained.

It was planned that this guide to vital statistics records should be made available, through the United States Bureau of the Census, to anyone asking for the information.

Publication of the reports from the various states, by the Bureau of the Census, having been deferred, the National office of the Historical Records Survey Program, in a letter dated February 10, 1941, requested the Minnesota Historical Records Survey project to revise the report for the State, condense it as to form, and to mimeograph and distribute it to agencies most in need of such a guide.

In revising the report, nothing has been omitted as to content that is deemed useful for anyone needing information contained in the records. The transcriptions from the laws have been assembled in an appendix with references from the introduction and from the short essays preceding the sections. The history of the growth of public vital statistics records in Minnesota has been traced in the introduction.

The project is indebted to the many workers who have contributed to the report, to county and other local officials who have been cooperative in all the phases of the survey of public records, and to the officials of the Work Projects Administration who have made the investigation and the report possible.

Preface

Copies of the guide are distributed to certain county officials and to libraries in the State, to a select number of institutions outside the State, to the Washington office of the Survey, and to the U. S. Bureau of the Census. A limited number are available to other officials who may be entitled to copies. Requests may be sent to Dr. Arthur J. Larsen, Superintendent, Minnesota Historical Society, St. Paul.

INTRODUCTION

It is becoming increasingly important for all citizens to have records of birth and of marital status and for succeeding generations to have records of death. By such records men and women establish parentage, rights and duties to enlistment in military service, to exemption from enlistment, to old age assistance, to retirement upon pension, to inheritance of property, to citizenship, to membership in organizations, to entrance into school, to employment under child labor laws, to vote, to legally marry, and to other advantages and obligations.

On account of the importance of vital statistics records, these are constantly improved and constantly increasing in volume. The readiness of access to them is of importance both to the custodians and to the individuals who need the information that they contain.

In this publication, the different classes (birth, death, marriage, divorce) have been separated in order that those who wish to consult one class need not go through the entire material. Birth records are given first, grouped by State, county, and local unit. Counties are arranged alphabetically. Cost of certified copies is indicated. Then follow death records, marriage records, and divorce records. Divorce records are given a somewhat different treatment on account of the different method of handling such cases.

The first official action regarding the recording of births and deaths in Minnesota was taken by the Legislature in 1870. City and town clerks were made the recording officers, and were directed to keep a complete "Registry of Births" and "Registry of Deaths." Parents, householders, oldest next of kin, and heads of public institutions were required to report the births and deaths of all persons for whom they were responsible. The physician who attended a person in his last illness was required, upon request, within fifteen days after the decease of such person, to furnish a death certificate for registration. A certified copy of all birth and death records was to be sent annually by the local clerk to the clerk of the district court of the county with proper jurisdiction, and the clerk of the district court in turn was to send an abstract to the Assistant Secretary of State, who was made ex-officio Commissioner of Statistics. Penalties were prescribed for failure of any person to perform the duties imposed upon him by the act.(1)

(1) General Laws, 1870, ch. 25, sec. 1, 4-7; 1871, ch. 49. The words "town clerk" were interpreted to mean township, village or borough clerk.

Introduction

State registration of births and deaths was taken from the office of the Secretary of State in 1887 and placed with the State Board of Health and Vital Statistics. Local registration in the towns remained with the township clerk, but in the cities, villages, and boroughs the health officers were entrusted with that duty. Physicians were required to report births as well as deaths, and midwives were required to report births. Responsibility for seeing that the report was made was not, however, taken from the parents, householders, eldest next of kin, and heads of public institutions. The local officers, acting under instructions of the State Board of Health, were required to send monthly to the secretary of that board a certified copy of their registry of births and deaths. The State board annually sent the returns and a summary to the clerk of the district court in the county concerned. These returns became a permanent record of the office. Failure to perform the duties outlined in this act was made a misdemeanor in 1899.(2)

In 1907 the law in regard to recording births and deaths assumed much of its present form. The State Board of Health was given general supervision of the State system of registration of births and deaths, and the secretary of that board was designated as State Registrar. The duties of the local registrars remained the same, but the obligations of these registrars in regard to securing complete registration were made much stricter. Specific statutory forms for the blank reports were outlined. The returns were to follow the previous channel from local registrar to the secretary of the State Board of Health and from him to the clerk of the district court of the county concerned. Specific duties were imposed upon embalmers and undertakers in obtaining information and making reports. Persons in charge of burial places were required to keep a complete record, open at all times to public inspection. Criminal prosecution was prescribed for neglect of any of the duties required.(3)

Acting under the broad powers conferred upon it by this act, the Board directed the local officers to send to its secretary the original birth and death certificates, retaining a duplicate. The Board retained these certificates and, as required by statute, forwarded returns to the clerks of the district court.(4)

Health officers of the cities and the town clerks remained as local registrars under an amended law passed in 1911, but the duties of that position was taken from the other local health officers and given to the village and borough clerks. Statistics of births and deaths were to be obtained and received by the local registrars and transmitted to the State Registrar. He in turn was to transmit a certified copy of tabulated vital statistics to the clerk of court of each county who was required to file, index, and preserve it. All district court clerks except in Hennepin, Ramsey, and St. Louis Counties were ordered to index "as speedily as possible" all records of births and deaths in their offices, not already indexed. The form of the index and indexing was to be prescribed by the secretary of the Board of Health.(5)

Supervisory powers of the State Board of Health were strengthened in 1913. City, village, and town clerks became the local registrars, except that the local health officer was to be the registrar in cities having an organized health department. The original birth and death certificates were still to be sent to the State Board of Health, after a local record was made. From these certificates the secretary of that board was required to prepare a certified annual tabulation for the clerk of the district court of the county concerned. Provision was made by which a child's given name could be supplied to a certificate from which it was missing. The responsibility of physicians and midwives was increased, but it was provided that in case there was no physician or midwife the report must be made by parents, landlords, or heads of institutions. Certified copies of birth and death certificates were to be furnished for a fee of 50 cents.(6)

A law regulating maternity hospitals, passed in 1919, provided that in addition to a report to the local board of health, a report should be made directly to the State Board of Control.(7)

The State registrar in 1921 was enjoined to endeavor to secure information relative to any errors or omissions in any birth or death certificates and to make corrections in red ink upon the securing of additional information.(8)

The health officers in the cities resumed their duties as registrars of vital statistics in 1925 replacing the city clerks and city recorders.(9)

Information as to military service became a required part of the death certificate in 1927.(10)

The State Board of Health and Vital Statistics was the original name of the agency now known as the State Board of Health. The latter part of the title was retained in the index of Revised

Laws, 1905, but omitted from the text and has not since been used.(11) For supervising the recording of vital statistics the Board has set up an agency within its ranks, designated as the Division of Birth and Death Records and Vital Statistics. It is headed by the secretary of the board as State Registrar of Statistics.(12)

Birth and death records for late years, that is from 1900, may be found in this Division. For the same period and also for years between 1870 and 1900, they may be sought in the office of the clerk of the district court in the county of residence. The registrars of the local units, in most cases for early years, and in all cases for recent years, have the Registers which were the source of the records now held by the State Board of Health and the clerks of court. However, as such officers change frequently, it is often difficult to locate the books.

For all general purposes the official information regarding births and deaths in the State is adequate since January 1, 1908.

Before that date the records vary in their degree of completeness. Minnesota was passing through a transition from a pioneer State, and while the laws regarding the recording of births and deaths have been adequate and specific beginning in 1870, compliance with the law was not always assured. Then too, since many Minnesota counties were not established as early as 1870, there are many where birth and death records do not go back that far.

If information is found to be lacking or to be incomplete, it may be supplied by church records of baptisms and funerals. In this case it is necessary to know the church and be able to locate the ministerial records. The Catholic, Lutheran and Episcopal records, where found, are for the most part complete and adequate. The same is also true of some of the other denominations, although in many cases methods of record keeping have varied with the clergymen.

Age may be established by means of census reports for early years. The State and Federal censuses show the names and ages of the parents and the names and ages of the children. School records and school census reports are also a fruitful source of information for more recent years, and are usually accurate. They are to be found in the offices of the county superintendent of schools at the county seats and in local school records. Among several other sources are family Bibles and lodge records.

Introduction

Before any persons can be joined in marriage in this State, a license must be obtained from the clerk of the district court of the county in which the woman resides, if she is a resident of the State, but, if she is not a resident of the State, then from the clerk in the county where the marriage is to take place.

An application for a marriage license must be made at least five days previous to the issuing of the license, except that, in special circumstances, the judge of probate, the judge of the district court, or the court commissioner may authorize the license to be issued at any time prior to the expiration of the five days.

An application for a marriage license is made out by the clerk of the district court in duplicate, one in a book of record and one loose-leaf. The record book also contains forms for the license and the certificate of marriage. The three forms may appear on one page, or the application may be on one page and the license and certificate forms on the opposite page.

The clerk signs and affixes his seal to both copies of the application. The loose-leaf copy is given to the applicant. The clerk charges $2.00 for administering the oath and issuing and recording the application and license and an additional 25 cents for recording the certificate of marriage, both amounts taken at the time of granting the application.

The clerk examines upon oath the party applying for license relative to the legality of the marriage.

The male person must have attained the age of 18 years and the female the age of 16. Unless the male is 21 and the female 18, the sworn consent of the parents must be obtained. A female 15 years old and under sixteen, may be married legally with the consent, personally given, of her parent or guardian and provided her application is approved by the judge of the juvenile court of the county in which she resides. Debarred from marriage are persons who have husband or wife living, persons divorced within six months, applicants nearer of kin than second cousins, and epileptic, imbecile, feeble-minded, or insane persons, and couples who are one or both under fifteen.

The law does not specify who must make application to the clerk and appear personally before him, but in practice application is made by one or both of the contracting parties or by parent or guardian.

If the clerk is not aware of any impediment to the marriage, he is required to issue a license upon the expiration of the five-day period, or sooner if ordered to do so by the judge of probate, the judge of the district court, or the court commissioner.

The license is made out in duplicate. The clerk fills out the form in the record book and also one on loose-leaf. He signs both and affixes his official seal to both. The loose-leaf duplicate is given to the applicant. The applicant surrenders the application form upon receipt of the license. The clerk generally files the application form, taken up from the applicant, loose in the record book opposite the other copy.

Before the marriage takes place, the person officiating takes up the marriage license and assures himself of its validity.

The person solemnizing the marriage must be a justice of the peace, a judge of any court of record, a court commissioner, or a regularly ordained minister of a church body. In the case of a minister, his credentials of ordination must be recorded in some county in the State.

No definite set of questions, to be put to the contracting parties by the one officiating, are prescribed. The requirements include a public acknowledgment on the part of both bride and groom in the presence of at least two witnesses besides the officer officiating.

The officiating officer retains the copy of the license as his authority. He detaches the certificate form from the license and fills it out, signing it together with two witnesses. Within a month he must send the certificate to the county clerk in the county where the license was issued. The 25 cents allowed the county clerk for filing and recording the certificate was collected when the application for license was taken; hence, is not, in practice, collected at this time.

If the female is not a resident of the State, the marriage must take place in the county in which the license is issued. If the female is a resident of Minnesota, the license must be issued in the county of her residence, but the marriage may take place in any county in the State.

If the marriage takes place in a county other than the county in which the license was issued, the officer officiating is legally required to file a certificate also in the county where the marriage is solemnized, but in practice this is seldom done, and many are of the opinion that the law requiring it has been superseded.

When the certificate of marriage comes to the county clerk, he records it in the proper space on the same page as the entry for the license. The loose copy of the certificate, received from the person officiating, is usually filed loose facing the same page.

The officer or clergyman officiating is required to give each of the contracting parties a certificate as evidence of their marriage.

In the case of Quakers, regular marriage laws do not apply, and no license is required, but if the marriage is performed in a Friends' Meeting, the clerk, within one month, must send a certificate of marriage to the clerk of the district court in the county where the marriage takes place, or, if the marriage ceremony is not performed in a Friends' Meeting, a certificate must be prepared and signed by the contracting parties and at least six witnesses and must likewise be sent to the clerk of the district court.(13)

In Minnesota, divorce and annulment proceedings are within the province of the district court, and the records of such proceedings are kept in the office of the clerk of the district court, who is a county officer and of which there is one in each county.

Divorce proceedings are conducted as civil cases and subject to the rules and regulations affecting such cases. Civil cases are tried in the district court, which has both civil and criminal jurisdiction.

There is in Minnesota no division of civil and equity cases, but actions for the enforcement of private rights and the redress of private wrongs are considered civil cases and tried as such in the district court.

A district court may have jurisdiction in one or more counties and may have one or more judges, but the records of such court for each county are county archives and are in the custody of a clerk whose area of jurisdiction is only his own county.

In order to obtain a divorce or the annulment of a marriage, action must be commenced by summons and complaint in the county where the plaintiff resides. If the defendant answers the complaint, the proceedings must be the same as in civil actions. If the defendant does not answer, the hearing may be held at a general or special term or in vacation, or the court may appoint a referee to take and report the evidence. After trial or hearing, the court must either decree or deny divorce or annulment.

The assignment of divorce cases to the district court has obtained since the territorial period, a provision to that effect appearing in the Revised Statutes of 1851, which statutes include also the original legislation of 1851. An exception to this statement is the fact that the Territorial Legislature itself granted one divorce and eight "dissolutions of the marriage contract" during the years 1849, 1851, and 1852.

(13) For legal references relating to marriages see Appendix, pp. 117-120.

Records of divorce and annulment proceedings are found in the office of the clerk of the district court in the same books as records of other civil cases. There are no separate divorce records. The Legislature has provided that the principal books of record in civil cases are:

1. A Register of Actions, in which shall appear the title of the action, a minute of each paper filed in the cause, and all proceedings therein.
2. A Judgment Book, in which every judgment shall be entered.
3. A Docket, in which shall be entered alphabetically the name of each judgment debtor, the amount of the judgment, and the precise time of its entry.
4. Indexes
    a. Plaintiff's
    b. Defendant's

The plaintiff's indexes are arranged alphabetically by name of plaintiff and usually lists items in the following order: plaintiff, defendant, kind of action, term commenced, record book, pages, term disposed of, date of judgment, judgment docket, execution docket, fee book, satisfied or not satisfied, number of case. The defendant's index has the same entries except that the names of plaintiff and defendant are reversed.

Anyone in search of divorce records must, therefore, make the same approach as would the searcher for information relating to any other civil case. The plaintiff's and defendant's indexes will locate the case files and the entries in the Register of Actions. When indexes cover several volumes, it is obvious that the searcher must know approximate dates to avoid inspecting more than one index book. Ordinarily the investigator will know whether he is looking for a plaintiff or a defendant. There is, however, no great difficulty in locating divorce records in the county offices in the State.(14)

County Records

In the list of birth records counties are arranged in alphabetical order. Titles are given as they appear on the records, except that explanatory words are added in parenthesis where they are obviously needed, and titles are supplied, also in parenthesis, where no titles appear on the records.

A hyphen is used to indicate inclusive dates, as 1883-1910; and two hyphens following a date indicate a continuous record to date, as 1883--.

The arrangement of entries or documents in the record is given if there is an obvious arrangement and if such arrangement was indicated when the survey was taken. The index is mentioned if there is one.

The cost of certified copies varies according to length. It is usually about 50 cents. The records are in all cases in the hands of the clerk of the district court in the county courthouse, and applications should be made to that officer. In the following list, the name of the county seat (in parenthesis) follows the name of the county.

County Records

In the list of death records, counties are arranged in alphabetical order. Titles are given as they appear on the records, except that explanatory words are added in parenthesis where they are obviously needed, and titles are supplied, also in parenthesis, where no titles appear on the records.

A hyphen is used to indicate inclusive dates, as 1883-1910; and two hyphens following a date indicate a continuous record to date, as 1883--.

The arrangement of entries or documents in the record is given if there is an obvious arrangement and if such arrangement was indicated when the survey was taken. The index is mentioned if there is one.

The cost of certified copies of an entry varies according to length. It is usually about 50 cents. The records are in all cases in the hands of the clerk of the district court in the county courthouse, and applications should be made to that officer. In the following list, the name of the county seat (in parenthesis) follows the name of the county.

Township and Municipal Records

The list of township records which follows is arranged alphabetically by counties and alphabetically by townships and municipalities within each county. Birth and death records are both given in this list, as in most local units they are kept together. The general practice has been to devote a section of the book to births and another to deaths, with a chronological arrangement under each head.

The registers are the original book record. As a general practice, there are self-contained indexes alphabetical by the first letter of the surname and chronological thereunder.

The cost of certified copies is 50 cents. Applications should be made to the township or village clerk who is custodian of the records. His address is wherever he resides; and, since there are frequent changes of clerks, the addresses given, which were approximately correct when the survey was taken, may not be correct at any future time. Addresses are, therefore, only approximately correct.

Applications for certificates of vital statistics records should be made to the State or to the county whenever possible, as township records may not be complete.

The following inventory is a partial one. Many local units are missing, and no effort has been made to list the loose material containing the original information.

MARRIAGES

County Records

Marriage records in the county are in all cases in the hands of the clerk of the district court, and applications for certified copies of entries should be addressed to that officer. The cost of certified copies is 50 cents. Registers of applications, copies of licenses, and certificates of marriage constitute the records in the clerk's office.

Ordinarily the registers have self-contained indexes under the first letters of the surnames of bride and groom and chronologically thereunder. Separate indexes, however, are found in some cases, arranged on the same principle.

Upon the receipt and the filing of such certified copies the clerk of court shall issue to each local registrar within his county a voucher for the amount due him as shown by such tabulated statement. Upon the presentation of such voucher to the county auditor, a warrant for the amount thereof shall be issued by him. The forms of indexes and indexing shall be prescribed by the State Registrar and made in a suitable book furnished at the expense of the county. All statistics of births and deaths shall be so indexed without other compensation than the clerk's salary, except, that in counties where the clerk is not on a salary basis, he shall be paid five cents by the county for each name so indexed.

and made a part of the original record. He shall immediately furnish to the State Registrar copies of such affidavits . . . (Laws, 1939, ch. 89, sec. 5; Mason's, 1940 supplement, sec. 5365).

In cases where a record of birth of a child is required for a specific purpose only, the State Registrar shall have power to issue a certificate setting forth the name, the place and date of birth of such child, and any other facts pertinent to the purpose for which the certificate is to be issued. Such certificate shall be evidence in any court upon the facts so recorded. (Laws, 1939, ch. 89, sec. 6; Mason's, 1940 supplement, sec. 5366).

Provided, that in any cases where it is impossible to secure such certificate or permit without delay, the State Registrar may permit the attending embalmer or funeral director to remove the body to another registration district on the condition that such certificate and permit will be secured and properly filed before the body is buried, cremated, further transported or otherwise disposed of. Where there is a person charged with the care or supervision of a cemetery, burial place, or other premises where human bodies are interred, cremated, or otherwise disposed of, the name of such person and his address shall be posted in a conspicuous place at the entrance of such premises. (Laws, 1925, ch. 190, sec. 5; Mason's, 1927, sec. 5360).

Section 4. The clerks of the district court for the several counties, or any justice of the peace, shall be authorized to grant marriage licenses, and shall inquire of the party applying (upon oath or affirmation, as the case may be), relative to the legality of such contemplated marriage, and if the clerk or justice shall be satisfied that there is no legal impediment thereto, then he shall grant such marriage license; and if any of the persons intending to marry shall be under age, and shall not have had a former wife or husband, the consent of the parents or guardians (as the case may be) shall be personally given before the clerk or justice, or certified under the hand of such parent or guardian, attested by two witnesses, one of whom shall appear before said clerk or justice and make oath or affirmation (as the case may be) that he saw the parent or guardian, whose name is annexed to such certificate, subscribe and acknowledge the same; and the clerk or justice is hereby authorized to administer such oath or affirmation, and may thereupon issue and sign such license; and if any clerk or justice shall in any other manner issue or sign any marriage license, he shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, to and for the use of the party aggrieved.

Section 5. A certificate of every marriage shall be signed by the person solemnizing the same, and be transmitted, together with the marriage license, to the clerk of the district court of the county wherein the marriage was solemnized, within three calendar months thereafter, and recorded by such clerk. Every person failing to transmit such certificate to the clerk of the district court of the county in due time, shall forfeit and pay fifty dollars for the use of the county; and if the clerk shall neglect to record the same, he shall forfeit and pay fifty dollars for the use of the county.

Section 6. If any person, by this law authorized to join persons in marriage, shall knowingly solemnize the same contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, the person so offending shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, to and for the use of the county wherein such offence may be committed; and if any person not legally authorized, shall attempt to solemnize the marriage contract, such person shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay five hundred dollars to and for the use of the county wherein such offence may be committed.

Section 7. Any fine or forfeiture arising in consequence of any breach of this law, shall be recovered by action of debt with costs of suit, in any court having cognizance of the same. (Laws, 1849, ch. 61. This was a Wisconsin law and continued in force in the Territory of Minnesota by the Organic Act, 9 U.S. Stat., ch. 121, sec. 14).

Present Laws

LICENSE, ELIGIBILITY. Before any persons shall be joined in marriage, a license shall be obtained from the clerk of the district court of the county in which the woman resides, or, if not a resident of this State, then from such clerk of the county where the marriage is to take place in the State. (Revised Laws, 1905, sec. 3558; Mason's, 1927, sec. 8568).

Application for a marriage license shall be made at least five days before a license shall be issued. The clerk shall examine upon oath the party applying for license relative to the legality of such contemplated marriage, and if, at the expiration of said five-day period, satisfied that there is no legal impediment thereto, he shall issue such license with his official seal attached, and make a record thereof, provided that in case of emergency, or extraordinary circumstances, the judge of the probate court or any judge of the district court of the county in which the application is made may authorize the license to be issued at any time before the expiration of said five days. If any person intending to marry shall be under the age of twenty one if a male and under the age of eighteen if a female, and shall not have had a former husband or wife, such license shall not be issued unless the consent of the parents or guardians shall be personally given before the clerk, or certified under the hand of such parents or guardians, attested by two witnesses, and duly verified by an officer duly authorized to take oaths and duly attested by a seal, where such officer has a seal. The clerk shall be entitled to a fee of two dollars for administering the oath, and issuing, recording, and filing all papers required. Any clerk who shall knowingly issue or sign a marriage license in any other manner than in this section provided shall forfeit and pay for the use of the parties aggrieved not to exceed one thousand dollars. (Laws, 1939, ch. 243; Mason's, 1940 supplement, 8569).

The court commissioner may also authorize a marriage within the five-day license period. (Op. Atty. General, June 21, 1935).

Every male person who has attained the full age of eighteen years, and every female person who has attained the full age of sixteen years, is capable in law of contracting marriage, if otherwise competent. Provided that a female person of the full age of 15 years may with the consent of her parents and her guardian if there be one, receive a license to marry when, after a careful inquiry into the facts and surrounding circumstances, her application for a license is approved by the judge of the juvenile court of the county in which she resides. (Laws, 1927, ch. 166, sec. 1; Mason's, 1927, sec. 8563).

CERTAIN MARRIAGES PROHIBITED. No marriage shall be contracted while either of the parties has a husband or wife living; nor within six months after either has been divorced from a former spouse; nor between parties who are nearer of kin than second cousins, whether of the half or whole blood, computed by the rules of the civil law; nor between persons either one of whom is epileptic, imbecile, feeble-minded or insane; nor between persons one or both of whom are under 15 years of age. (Laws, 1937, ch. 407, sec. 1; Mason's, 1940 supplement, sec. 8564).

CERTIFICATE TO CONTRACTING PARTIES. The person solemnizing a marriage shall give each of the parties a certificate thereof, specifying therein the names and residences of the parties, and of at least two of the witnesses present, and the time and place of the marriage. (Revised Laws, 1905, sec. 3561; Mason's, 1927, sec. 8571).

CERTIFICATE TO CLERK OF DISTRICT COURT. Every person solemnizing a marriage shall make a record thereof, and within one month make and deliver to the clerk of the district court of the county where the marriage took place, or of the county to which said county is attached for judicial purposes, a certificate under his hand containing the particulars mentioned in the preceding section which certificate, shall be filed and recorded by said clerk in a book kept by him for that purpose, and said clerk shall be entitled to receive the sum of twenty-five cents for recording said certificate from the person offering the same for record. And the clerk of said court shall execute a receipt to the person delivering said certificate, which said receipt shall be of even date with the delivery of said certificate, and shall contain substantially all of the facts set forth in said certificate; to be signed by said clerk and have affixed thereto the seal of said court. (Laws, 1905, ch. 294; Mason's, 1927, sec. 8573).

In the early days the term "clerk of the district court of the county . . ." was implied to mean also the clerk of the district court of the county to which the county in question was attached for judicial purposes. (General Statutes, 1878, ch. 62, sec. 16).

Every person solemnizing a marriage shall make a record thereof, and within one month make and file with the clerk of the district court of the county in which the license was issued a certificate, under his hand, containing the facts mentioned in Revised Laws, 1905, sec. 3561 (Mason's, 1927, sec. 8571), which certificate shall be filed and recorded by said clerk in a book kept by him for that purpose; and said clerk shall be entitled to receive twenty-five cents for recording said certificate from the person offering the same for record. (Laws, 1909, ch. 386; Mason's, 1927, sec. 8572).

The opinion is expressed in Mason's, 1940 supplement, that section 8572 supersedes section 8573, although section 8573 has never been definitely repealed.

MARRIAGE AMONG QUAKERS. All marriages solemnized among the people called Friends or Quakers, in the form heretofore practices and in use in their meetings, shall be valid and not affected by any of the foregoing provisions; and the clerk of the meeting in which such marriage is solemnized, within one month after any such marriage, shall deliver a certificate of the same to the clerk of the district court of the county where the marriage took place, under penalty of not more than one hundred dollars, and such certificate shall be filed and recorded by the clerk under a like penalty; and, if such marriage does not take place in such meeting, such certificate shall be signed by the parties and at least six witnesses present, and filed and recorded as above provided under a like penalty. (Revised Laws, 1905, sec. 4783; Mason's, 1927, sec. 8578).

DIVORCES

JURISDICTION. A divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be adjudged by the district court . . . (Revised Laws, 1851, ch. 66, sec. 7; 1905, sec. 3574; Laws, 1909, ch. 443; 1927, ch. 304; 1933, ch. 262, 324; 1934 extra session, ch. 78; 1935, ch. 295).

A complaint for divorce, or for affirming or declaring the marriage contract void, may be exhibited by a wife in her own name, or by her next friend; and in all cases, the defendant may answer without oath or affirmation. Application for a divorce shall be made to the district court of any county in this territory. (Revised Statutes, 1851, sec. 66, sec. 10; General Statutes, 1866, ch. 62, sec. 10; Revised Laws, 1905, sec. 3577; Laws, 1931, ch. 226, sec. 1; Mason's, 1940 supplement, sec. 8588 and notes).

When the validity of a marriage is disputed, either party may begin an action in the district court of the county where either resides, to annul the same. In such action the complaint shall be filed and proceedings had thereon as in actions for divorce, and upon due proof of the nullity of the marriage, it shall be adjudged null and void. (Revised Statutes, 1851, ch. 66; Revised Laws, 1905, sec. 3571; Mason's, 1940 supplement, sec. 8582, notes).

NATURE OF ACTION. The distinction between at law and suits in equity and the forms of such actions and suits are abolished. There shall be in the State but one form of action for the enforcement or protection of private rights and the redress of private wrongs. This shall be called a civil action, and the party complaining shall be styled the plaintiff and the adverse party the defendant. (Revised Laws, 1905, sec. 4052; General Statutes, 1913, sec. 7673; Mason's, 1927, sec. 9164).

If the defendant does not appear after service duly made and proved, the court may hear and determine the action at a general or special term, or in vacation: Provided, that the court or judge, upon application, may refer said action to a referee to take and report the evidence therein. When issue is joined, like proceedings shall be had as in civil actions. (General Statutes, 1866, ch. 62, sec. 14; General Laws, 1875, ch. 58; 1878, ch. 13; Revised Laws, 1905, sec. 3581; Mason's, 1927, sec. 8592; 1940 supplement, sec. 8592, notes).

JUDGMENT. A judgment of divorce is governed by the same rules as a judgment in an ordinary civil action. (Mark B. Dunnell, Minnesota Digest, 2d ed., sec. 2799. State of Minnesota v. John L. Armington, 25 Minn. 29 (1878); Clarinda Morey v. Abijah Morey, 27 Minn. 265, 6 N.W. Reptr. 783 (1880); Anna V. Searles v. William M. Searles, 140 Minn. 385, 168 N. W. Reptr. 153 (1918).

RECORDING OFFICER. There shall be elected in each county where a district court shall be held, one clerk of said court, whose qualifications, duties and compensation shall be prescribed by law and whose term of office shall be four years. (Constitution of the State of Minnesota, art. 6, sec. 13; Laws, 1913, ch. 458; 1915, ch. 168; Mason's, 1927, sec. 820).

RECORDS. Every clerk (of the district court) shall procure, at the expense of his county, and keep, the following books:

1. A register of actions, in which he shall enter the title of each action, whether originally commenced in his said court, or brought there by appeal or transcript of judgment from justice court or from any court of record of the State or United States, and a minute of each paper filed in the cause, and all proceedings therein.
2. A judgment book in which every judgment shall be entered.
3. A docket in which he shall enter alphabetically the name of each judgment debtor, the amount of the judgment, and the precise time of its entry.
4. Indexes . . . and such other books as the court, in its discretion, may direct. (Revised Statutes, 1851, ch. 71, sec. 72, 78, ch. 82, sec. 40; General Statutes, 1866, ch. 8, sec. 229; Revised Laws, 1905, sec. 110; Mason's, 1927, sec. 195).

Every clerk shall keep in separate books a plaintiff's and defendant's index to court records, in which all cases shall be entered in alphabetical order under the name of each plaintiff and defendant. They shall set forth the names of the parties, kind of action, term commenced, the record books and pages on which recorded, the term disposed of, date of judgment, book and page of judgment dockets, fee books, satisfied or not satisfied, and number of case. The defendant's index shall be ruled and printed in the same manner as plaintiff's except that the parties shall be reversed . . . (General Laws, 1885, ch. 181; Revised Laws, 1905, ch. 111; Mason's, 1940 supplement, sec. 196).

CERTIFIED COPIES. The several county auditors, judges of probate, and clerks of the district court, during the hours when their respective offices are required by law to be open, shall furnish to any person demanding the same a certified copy of any record, file or paper in their office, or in their official custody, upon tender of such fees therefor as are by law allowed to registers of deeds for like services. (Laws, 1887, ch. 83; Revised Laws, 1905, sec. 615; Mason's, 1927, sec. 988).

MARRIAGES VOID. All marriages which are prohibited by law on account of consanguinity, or on account of either or both parties being under the age of 15 years, or on account of either party having a former husband or wife then living, if solemnized within this State, shall be absolutely void, without any decree of divorce or other legal proceedings: Provided, that if any person whose husband or wife has been absent for five successive years, without being known to such person to be living during that time, marries during the lifetime of such absent husband or wife, the marriage shall be void only from the time that its nullity is duly adjudged. (Laws, 1937, sec. 407, sec. 2; Mason's, 1940 supplement, sec. 8580).
